FRENCH CUSTOMS APPOINT BRUNTONS

Working closely with our French agents Wenex, Bruntons were successful against strong local competition in winning the contract to provide servicing, spare parts and new equipment for all French Customs vessels. The contract, which also requires the provision of technical advice on propulsion matters, has seen Bruntons already providing new bearings and propellers as well as carrying out propeller repairs.

French Customs are currently building two new 40 metre patrol craft, both of which will be fitted with propellers supplied by Bruntons custom division. Bruntons and other companies within the group to which Bruntons belongs regularly supply propellers for use on warships and other 'high tech' craft. These propellers, all of which have to be to the highest quality, are often also at the cutting edge of propeller design. The development of these propellers, their design and manufacture, ensures that Bruntons stays at the forefront of propulsion technology. Technology and experience which is also used in the propellers we build for other commercial craft as well as sailing and motor yachts.
